DEMAND FOR JURY TRIAL

1 Plaintiff craigslist, Inc. (“craigslist”), for its Complaint against RadPad, Inc. (“RadPad”), 2 and Does 1-10 (the “Doe Defendants”) (collectively, “Defendants”), alleges as follows:

3 NATURE OF THE ACTION

4 1. Over the last 20 years, craigslist has developed one of the world’s most popular 5 websites, craigslist.org, which offers a simple and trusted platform for authorized users to seek 6 employment, offer and search for housing, trade goods and services, find companionship, and 7 engage in community discussions. craigslist’s platform attracts tens of millions of authorized 8 users who collectively post several hundred million classified ads each year. Unfortunately, 9 craigslist’s success has made it an attractive target for unscrupulous “businesses” attempting to 10 unlawfully capitalize on craigslist’s hard-earned success and popularity. Despite craigslist’s best 11 efforts, these bad actors attempt to access and exploit the content of the craigslist website without 12 authorization and for their own commercial gain, in violation of craigslist’s Terms of Use and 13 both California and federal law. RadPad is one such enterprise.

14 2. RadPad offers an online real estate rental listing service that competes against 15 craigslist. But instead of innovating to attract its own customer base, RadPad has sought to 16 unlawfully piggyback on craigslist’s decades of hard work by unlawfully accessing the craigslist 17 website, stealing craigslist users’ posts and contact information, spamming those users with 18 misleading emails, and then reposting the harvested craigslist listings on the RadPad site. By 19 this action, craigslist seeks to put a stop to RadPad’s unlawful conduct.

20 3. This action is related to a recent case in which craigslist obtained permanent 21 injunctions against a collection of defendants, including 3taps, Inc. (“3taps”), engaged in 22 virtually identical unlawful conduct. See craigslist, Inc. v. 3taps, Inc. et al., No. CV 12-03816 23 CRB (N.D. Cal.) (the “3taps Litigation”). In that related case, 3taps was, like the Defendants 24 here, unlawfully accessing the craigslist website, harvesting craigslist’s users’ posts and contact 25 information, and (with the aid of others) spamming them. But rather than using the 26 misappropriated content to itself compete directly with craigslist, 3taps sold it to various third 27 parties who did. craigslist sued 3taps and two of its “customers,” Discover Home Network Inc.
 28 d/b/a Lovely (“Lovely”) and PadMapper, Inc. (“PadMapper”), for copyright infringement and a variety of other claims, and obtained permanent injunctions against all of them.

4. RadPad was another company that received Craigslist listings from 3taps. But beyond just being a customer, RadPad, on information and belief, also consulted with 3taps about improvements to 3taps' product and efforts to evade Craigslist's technological blocking measures, just as fellow customers Lovely and PadMapper did. Now that 3taps is permanently enjoined, RadPad and the Doe Defendants¹ have taken up the mantle themselves, finding new ways to unlawfully access and scrape Craigslist content, infringe Craigslist's copyrights, and harass Craigslist's users.

9 5. This unlawful conduct must stop. By accessing craigslist's website to 10 misappropriate user posts and private information, Defendants violate craigslist's Terms of Use 11 (i.e., commit breach of contract), along with the federal Computer Fraud and Abuse Act 12 ("CFAA") and its California state law equivalent. By using that information to send misleading 13 spam emails, by the tens of thousands, to craigslist's users, Defendants violate the federal CAN-14 SPAM Act and its California state law equivalent. By posting craigslist rental listings, including 15 their full text and photos, on RadPad's site without the consent of craigslist or its users, 16 Defendants violate the Copyright Act. And beyond all of that, Defendants are secondarily liable 17 for the copyright infringements that 3taps committed.

JURISDICTION

19 6. This is a civil action for breach of contract; violations of the CFAA, 18 U.S.C.
20 § 1030; violations of the California Comprehensive Data Access and Fraud Act, Cal. Penal Code
21 § 502; violations of the CAN-SPAM Act, 15 U.S.C. § 7701 et seq.; violations of the California 22 Restrictions on Unsolicited Commercial Email Advertisers, California Business and Professional 23 Code § 17529, et seq.; and copyright infringement under the federal Copyright Act of 1976 (as 25 ¹ On August 8, 2016, RadPad served its initial responses to craigslist's First Set of 26 Interrogatories. Through these responses, craigslist learned that RadPad hired a team of 27 freelancers from a company called Elance-oDesk, Inc. (later renamed "UpWork") to 28 systematically extract information from the craigslist website and send it to RadPad. See 29 RadPad's Response to Interrogatory No. 1 dated August 8, 2016. Further discovery is necessary 30 to determine the names of the Elance-oDesk freelancers and the details of their activities, 31 including whether Elance-oDesk systematically enabled or allowed the unlawful conduct to take 32 place.

amended), 17 U.S.C. § 101 et seq.

7. This court has jurisdiction over the CAN-SPAM and CFAA claims under 28 U.S.C. §§ 1331, and the Copyright Act claims under 28 U.S.C. §§ 1331 and 1338.

8. This Court has supplemental jurisdiction over the remaining claims under 28 U.S.C. § 1337.

9. This Court has personal jurisdiction over Defendants because they have conducted substantial business and on information and belief maintain offices in this State and because they have consented to personal jurisdiction in this State by agreeing to craigslist's Terms of Use, which require such consent, as alleged herein.

VENUE

11 10. Venue in this Court is proper under 28 U.S.C. § 1331(b)(2), because a substantial 12 part of the events giving rise to the claims alleged in this Complaint occurred in this District and 13 because Defendants have consented to venue in this District by agreeing to craigslist's Terms of 14 Use, which require such consent, as alleged herein.

INTRADISTRICT ASSIGNMENT

16 11. This is an Intellectual Property Action and may be assigned on a district-wide 17 basis pursuant to Civil L.R. 3-2(c).

THE PARTIES

19 12. craigslist, Inc. is a Delaware corporation, with its principal place of business in 20 San Francisco, California.

13. Defendant RadPad, Inc. is a Delaware corporation, with its principal place of business in Los Angeles, California.

23 14. craigslist does not know the true names of Defendants Does 1 through 10, 24 inclusive, and therefore sues those defendants by such fictitious names. craigslist is informed 25 and believes, and on that basis alleges, that Defendants Does 1 through 10, inclusive, are 26 responsible for the acts alleged in this Complaint. When the true names of such fictitious 27 defendants are ascertained, craigslist will seek leave of this Court to amend this Complaint to 28 name those individuals or entities.

GENERAL ALLEGATIONS

The craigslist Classified Ad Service

3 15. Founded in San Francisco, California in 1995 by Craig Newmark, craigslist began 4 as an email list for friends and co-workers to share information about events in and around the 5 Bay Area. Today, craigslist has become one of the world's most popular websites, relied upon 6 by its authorized users who seek employment, offer and search for housing, trade goods and 7 services, find companionship, and engage in community discussions. craigslist's fierce 8 dedication to its users is reflected in the website's various policies and efforts to protect those 9 users from spam, scams, and the unauthorized harvesting or use of content posted by users, 10 including their personal information, by third parties seeking to exploit that content and 11 information for their own commercial gain. Users, in turn, entrust their content and information 12 to the craigslist website.

13 16. By accessing the craigslist website, all visitors agree to craigslist's Terms of Use.
14 That contract provides that scraping the craigslist website and spamming craigslist's other users 15 are both prohibited. Specifically, the Terms of Use state: "Robots, spiders, scripts, scrapers, 16 crawlers, etc. are prohibited, as are misleading, unsolicited . . . and/or spam postings/email. You 17 agree not to collect users' personal and/or contact information." From past experience, craigslist 18 has learned that certain third parties intent on misappropriating craigslist content go to elaborate 19 lengths to try to mask their identity and evade technological blocks that craigslist imposes on 20 users who repeatedly violate the Terms of Use. As a result, those acts of technological evasion 21 are also prohibited under the contract.

22 17. Once bound by the Terms of Use, users can browse ads posted by other users, or 23 post ads themselves. Users' ads typically include a title, description and other relevant details 24 about whatever the user placing the ad may be offering or seeking, and often include an email 25 address and telephone number for replies. Typically, that information is initially hidden from 26 public view, to make it more difficult for "scrapers" to copy.

The 3taps Litigation

28 18. For nearly as long as it has existed, craigslist has been combatting scrapers and 1 other commercial enterprises from misappropriating its listings and user information.

2 19. Several years ago, 3taps set out to systematically harvest, and then sell for profit, 3 every post on the craigslist website. Acting through a network of overseas contractors and 4 agents specifically to evade the jurisdiction of U.S. law enforcement, 3taps would, on a daily 5 basis, send an army of digital robots to craigslist to copy and download the full text of millions 6 of craigslist user ads. 3taps then indiscriminately made those misappropriated listings 7 available—through its so-called “data feed”—to any company that wanted to use them, for any 8 purpose. Some such “customers” paid as much as $20,000 per month for that content, while 9 others received it for free.

10 20. Lovely and PadMapper were two of 3taps’ “customers” (and as discussed below, 11 RadPad was a third). Lovely and PadMapper both operated websites offering real estate listing 12 services in competition with craigslist. They both took the scraped craigslist ads they received 13 from 3taps and posted those ads on their own sites. craigslist users, in turn, repeatedly 14 complained to craigslist that they had never authorized those third-party websites to post their 15 listings, and that they were getting calls from apartment seekers long after the locations they had 16 advertised on craigslist were rented.

17 21. In July 2012, craigslist sued 3taps and PadMapper for, inter alia, copyright and 18 trademark infringement, breach of contract, and unfair competition. In November 2012, 19 craigslist added Lovely as a defendant.

20 3taps’ Copyright Infringements

21 22. In the course of the 3taps Litigation, craigslist started giving its users the choice 22 whether to assign the copyright in their ads to craigslist. The purpose of that “opt-in” system 23 was, expressly, to allow craigslist to enforce the copyrights in those individual listings against 24 third parties that stole them. In short order, tens of thousands of craigslist users availed 25 themselves of that option. craigslist, in turn, filed applications to register thirty of those works 26 with the U.S. Copyright Office. The resulting copyright registrations are as follows:

23. 3taps willfully infringed the copyright in each of these works. It reproduced them, by copying the full text of each listing from the craigslist site to 3taps' own internal database. And then it distributed them, by including them in the "data feed" which it sent out to its "customers."

24. All of the defendants in the 3taps litigation are now permanently enjoined from engaging in such conduct or otherwise using craigslist users' posts in any way.

25. Final Judgments and Permanent Injunctions In The 3taps Litigation

26. On April 3, 2015, following a stipulation between the parties, the United States District Court for the Northern District of California entered a Final Judgment, including a $2.1 million monetary judgment, and Permanent Injunction against Lovely. Attached as Exhibit A is a true and correct copy of the Final Judgment and Permanent Injunction against Lovely.

1 26. On June 30, 2015, following a stipulation between the parties, the United States 2 District Court for the Northern District of California entered Final Judgments and Permanent 3 Injunctions against 3taps (and related parties) and PadMapper, including a $1,000,000 monetary 4 judgment against 3taps and its related parties. Attached as Exhibit B is a true and correct copy of 5 the Final Judgment and Permanent Injunction against 3taps and its related parties. Attached as 6 Exhibit C is a true and correct copy of the Final Judgment and Permanent Injunction against 7 PadMapper.

8 27. The permanent injunctions entered against Lovely, PadMapper and 3taps are 9 sweeping. They broadly prohibit those parties and their respective agents and representatives, 10 from, inter alia: (i) accessing or using craigslist, directly or indirectly; (ii) copying, downloading, 11 harvesting, or obtaining craigslist user postings by any means whatsoever; (iii) directly or 12 indirectly displaying craigslist content; (iv) circumventing technological measures that control 13 access to craigslist; (v) infringing any of craigslist's copyrighted materials; and (vi) sending or 14 transmitting, or paying, directing, aiding, or conspiring with others to send or transmit spam 15 messages to craigslist users.

RadPad's Relationship With 3taps

17 28. Like Lovely and PadMapper, RadPad is a former “customer” of 3taps—that is, 18 RadPad received the misappropriated craigslist listings that 3taps scraped, to use on RadPad’s 19 own website.

20 29. On information and belief, the interactions between RadPad, the Doe Defendants, 21 and 3taps went far beyond a limited buyer-seller relationship. Like other 3taps “customers,” 22 RadPad, on information and belief, provided feedback to 3taps about its service and assisted 23 3taps in shaping and tailoring its “data feed.” RadPad and the Doe Defendants likely also, on 24 information and belief, advised 3taps about how to circumvent craigslist’s technological 25 blocking efforts, and otherwise materially contributed to and induced 3taps’ unlawful 26 reproduction and distribution of craigslist user listings.

27 30. On December 4, 2013 and January 13, 2014, while RadPad was still using 3taps' 28 data feed, craigslist sent RadPad cease and desist letters expressly revoking RadPad's right to use

1 or access craigslist in any way or for any purpose. craigslist demanded that RadPad cease and 2 desist its abuse of craigslist and all violations of craigslist's legal rights, and informed RadPad 3 that any access to or use of the craigslist website or services by RadPad or on RadPad's behalf is 4 unauthorized.

5 RadPad's Recent Conduct

6 31. Following the June 2015 permanent injunction against 3taps, RadPad began its 7 own independent efforts to unlawfully access the craigslist website, misappropriate craigslist 8 users' contact information, make copies of their listings, and initiate commercial electronic 9 messages.

10 32. In an effort to stop that conduct, craigslist recently filed a new suite of copyright 11 registration applications for ads posted by users, where the users voluntarily assigned their 12 copyrights to craigslist. Those applications—106 in all—are catalogued in Exhibit D (the “2016 13 Copyrighted Works”). These are all works that, on information and belief, RadPad copied in 14 full—including all or substantially all of the listings’ text and the photos—and publicly displayed 15 on the RadPad site, without consent from craigslist or the craigslist users who authored the posts, 16 as described below.

17 33. RadPad has admitted that from June 2015 to June 2016 RadPad hired “a team of 18 [10 to 15] individuals through Elance-oDesk, Inc. to manually review” the craigslist website and 19 “to send information from” craigslist to RadPad. See RadPad’s Response to craigslist’s 20 Interrogatory No. 1 dated August 8, 2016. On information and belief, like 3taps before it, 21 RadPad and/or the Doe Defendants used a variety of techniques to evade detection by craigslist, 22 despite craigslist’s best efforts to block them.

23 34. On information and belief, when RadPad and/or the Doe Defendants accessed the 24 craigslist site, they copied the full text and photographs of thousands or millions of craigslist user 25 listings into a database. On information and belief, RadPad then took all, or substantially all, of 26 the full text and photographs of these listings and publicly displayed them on the RadPad 27 website. This allegation is based in part on the fact that RadPad has now admitted that “it has 28 displayed content on its website that originated from publicly displayed” craigslist user listings.

1 See RadPad's Response to craigslist's Request for Admission No. 17 dated August 8, 2016.

2 35. On information and belief, RadPad and/or the Doe Defendants also engage or 3 engaged in a scheme that works as follows: They harvest craigslist users' contact information 4 from that database, and initiate many thousands of electronic mail messages per day to the 5 addresses harvested from craigslist servers. RadPad and the Doe Defendants then co-opt and 6 abuse craigslist's own "relay" system (i.e., the electronic communication system through which 7 craigslist users can correspond with each other) to transmit their commercial electronic mail 8 messages.

9 36. RadPad sends messages to craigslist users that display a fraudulent return address 10 such as "no-reply@rentyourpad.info," and, in the body, are generally fraudulently signed 11 "Emily." They contain misleading subject lines and content in the body of the spam messages, 12 designed to trick craigslist users into switching from using craigslist's services to using RadPad's 13 services.

14 37. The deceptive subject lines of RadPad's and/or the Doe Defendants' spam emails 15 include such phrases as "Your charming Apartment," "Love your Apartment," "Love your 16 House" and "Love your place!" Those automated form subject lines, and others like them, 17 mislead recipients to believe that the sender is a natural person who has reviewed the craigslist 18 user's ad and has formed a positive impression that might lead to a rental agreement (the 19 objective for placing the ad on craigslist). In reality, RadPad and/or the Doe Defendants have 20 programmed a computer to insert these and other form statements into the subject line to trick the 21 recipient into believing that it is a bona fide lead from another (human) craigslist user with a 22 sincere interest in renting the property. In other words, the sender of the message is merely 23 conducting an automated commercial electronic mail message campaign for the purpose of 24 promoting RadPad.

25 38. The body of these spam emails takes several forms. For example, one reads: 26 Just wanted to say how great your Apartment is. I know how hard 27 it can be to find great renters on craigslist, that's [sic] why 28 I've featured your apartment (<http://goo.gl/2EFr>[redacted]) to help you drive qualified applicants. With over 2 million renters, you can receive applications, income history, credit scores, and more renter data to actually find a great tenant. Let me know what you think.

Emily

39. Another reads:

I love your place so much that I featured it and have multiple applicants who are interested in reaching you [http://goo.gl/zMn\[redacted\]](http://goo.gl/zMn[redacted]). With over 2.2 million renters working with us, you'll receive full applications with income history, credit scores, background checks and more renter data to find a renter youâ€™ll [sic] love. Let me know if there is anything else I can help with. Emily

7 40. Clicking the link in the email takes the user to the “goo.gl” address listed, which 8 then resolves to a page on the RadPad website. On that page, a sign-up box is in the foreground, 9 with the craigslist user’s contact information pre-populated. In the background is the ad the user 10 posted to craigslist—replete with all of the user’s pictures and the full text of his or her listing—11 reformatted to fit the RadPad listing template. Figure 1, below, provides an example:

Irreparable Harm

2 41. Defendants' actions have caused and will cause irreparable harm to craigslist, for 3 which it has no adequate remedy at law. Defendants' conduct diminishes craigslist's goodwill—4 inter alia by harming its customers and interfering with its relationships with those customers—5 and injures craigslist's reputation as a trusted and secure platform. craigslist has worked hard 6 and invested heavily for many years so that its site can be used largely free of charge and its 7 users protected from spam, and has implemented a complex array of protocols to ensure that 8 users will determine where their own listings appear and for how long. When Defendants pirate 9 users' material from the craigslist site and re-display it on RadPad's site, users are effectively 10 robbed of that ownership and control.

11 42. Defendants' conduct also requires craigslist to deploy and administer an arsenal 12 of technological measures to try to impede Defendants' ever-changing scraping and spamming 13 strategies. That arms race has remained ongoing throughout at least a portion of this litigation.
14 Although craigslist does its best to protect its site from Defendants' unwanted and improper 15 interference, those efforts are far from one hundred percent successful—leaving craigslist users 16 victim to RadPad and its associates' rampant violations of the law.

FIRST CLAIM FOR RELIEF

Breach of Contract

19 43. craigslist realleges and incorporates by reference all of the factual allegations set 20 forth above.

21 44. At all relevant times, the main craigslist homepage, and other pages from which 22 users navigate the craigslist website, have prominently displayed links to craigslist's Terms of 23 Use and made clear that users may not access the craigslist website without agreeing to those 24 Terms of Use. In addition, craigslist users are presented with the Terms of Use and must 25 affirmatively accept them to register for a craigslist account to post ads. Similarly, craigslist 26 users are presented with the Terms of Use and must affirmatively accept them before posting an 27 ad without an account.

28 45. RadPad and/or the Doe Defendants have accepted and agreed to be bound by the

1 Terms of Use by creating accounts, posting ads to craigslist and/or browsing or otherwise 2 accessing the craigslist website.

3 46. RadPad and/or the Doe Defendants have regularly accessed and used the craigslist 4 website to, among other things, copy and misappropriate craigslist's users' personal and/or 5 contact information, and send spam through craigslist's re-mailer to craigslist's users.

6 47. On information and belief, RadPad and/or the Doe Defendants have used (and 7 continue to use) software or services that interact or interoperate with craigslist, and have 8 employed robots, spiders, scripts, scrapers or crawlers on the craigslist website.

9 48. On information and belief, RadPad and/or the Doe Defendants have circumvented 10 (and continue to circumvent) craigslist's efforts to block RadPad's and/or the Doe Defendants' 11 access to the craigslist website.

12 49. RadPad has sent and continues to send misleading, unsolicited, unlawful and/or 13 spam postings and/or email to craigslist users.

14 50. RadPad's and/or the Doe Defendants' actions have breached craigslist's Terms of 15 Use.

16 51. craigslist has performed all conditions, covenants, and promises required of it in 17 accordance with the Terms of Use.

18 52. RadPad's and/or the Doe Defendants' conduct has caused and continues to cause 19 irreparable and incalculable harm and injury to craigslist.

20 53. craigslist is entitled to injunctive relief, compensatory damages, costs and/or such 21 other relief as may be available.

22 SECOND CLAIM FOR RELIEF

23 CAN-SPAM: 15 U.S.C. § 7701 *et seq.

24 54. craigslist realleges and incorporates by reference all of the factual allegations set 25 forth above.

26 55. craigslist is a provider of Internet access service as defined in 15 U.S.C.
 27 § 7702(11) because it provides a service that enables users to access content, information, 28 electronic mail, or other services offered over the Internet, and may also include access to 1 proprietary content, information, and other services as part of a package of services offered to 2 consumers.

3 56. craigslist's website and computers are used in and affect interstate and foreign 4 commerce and communication, and are therefore protected computers within the meaning of 5 15 U.S.C. § 7702(13).

6 57. The spam messages initiated by RadPad and/or the Doe Defendants are 7 "commercial" electronic mail messages because their primary purpose is the commercial 8 advertisement or promotion of RadPad's commercial products or services (including content on 9 an Internet website operated for a commercial purpose) as provided in 15 U.S.C. § 7702(2)(A).

10 58. On information and belief, RadPad and/or the Doe Defendants initiate the 11 transmission of commercial electronic mail messages with actual knowledge, or knowledge 12 fairly implied on the basis of objective circumstances, that the messages contain, or are 13 accompanied by, header information that is materially false or materially misleading.

14 59. On information and belief, RadPad and/or the Doe Defendants initiate the 15 transmission of commercial electronic mail messages with actual knowledge, or knowledge 16 fairly implied on the basis of objective circumstances, that the messages' subject heading would 17 be likely to mislead a recipient, acting reasonably under the circumstances.

18 60. RadPad and/or the Doe Defendants are also engaged in a pattern or practice of 19 initiating the transmission of commercial electronic mail messages that do not contain a 20 functioning return electronic mail address or other Internet-based mechanism, clearly and 21 conspicuously displayed, that a recipient could use, in a manner specified in the message, to 22 request not to receive future commercial electronic mail messages from that sender.

23 61. In addition, RadPad and/or the Doe Defendants initiate the transmission of 24 commercial electronic messages, in a pattern or practice, that does not clearly and conspicuously 25 identify that the messages are advertisements or solicitations for RadPad's services, do not 26 contain clear and conspicuous notice of the opportunity to decline to receive further commercial 27 electronic mail messages from the sender, and do not provide a physical postal address of the 28 sender.

1 62. On information and belief, RadPad and/or the Doe Defendants originate or 2 transmit commercial electronic messages or intentionally pay or provide other considerations to 3 another person to initiate such messages on its behalf, with actual knowledge that, or by 4 consciously avoiding knowing whether, such person is engaging, or will engage, in a pattern or 5 practice that violates the CAN-SPAM Act.

6 63. Moreover, RadPad and/or the Doe Defendants knowingly initiate the transmission 7 of commercial electronic mail messages or assist in the origination of such messages to craigslist 8 users with actual knowledge or knowledge fairly implied on the basis of objective circumstances 9 that the email addresses were obtained by using an automated means such as email harvesting 10 software.

11 64. RadPad's and the Doe Defendants' conduct violates the CAN-SPAM Act many 12 times over, including without limitation 15 U.S.C. §§ 7704(a)(1), (a)(2), (a)(3), (a)(5), and (b).

13 65. craigslist is adversely affected by reason of these violations, including, without 14 limitation, by incurring expenses and resources associated with being forced to investigate and 15 combat RadPad's and/or the Doe Defendants' unauthorized spam messages.

16 66. craigslist is entitled to statutory damages in an amount to be proven at trial.

17 67. craigslist is entitled to aggravated damages in an amount equal to three times the 18 amount otherwise available pursuant to 15 U.S.C. § 7706(g)(3)(C) because RadPad and/or the 19 Doe Defendants have knowingly and willfully violated craigslist's rights and has sent 20 commercial electronic mail messages to craigslist users by using automated means to obtain their 21 email addresses as set forth in 15 U.S.C. § 7704(b).

22 68. In addition, craigslist has suffered and will continue to suffer irreparable harm,
 23 and its remedy at law is not itself adequate to compensate it for injuries inflicted by RadPad 24 and/or the Doe Defendants. Accordingly, craigslist is entitled to injunctive relief pursuant to 25 15 U.S.C. § 7706(g)(1)(A).

26 69. craigslist is also entitled to recover its costs, including attorneys' fees, pursuant to 27 15 U.S.C. § 7706(g)(4).

28

THIRD CLAIM FOR RELIEF

Restrictions on Unsolicited Commercial Email Advertisers:

Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529, et seq.

70. craigslist realleges and incorporates by reference all of the factual allegations set forth above.

71. craigslist is an electronic mail service provider as defined in Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.1 because it is an Internet service provider that is an intermediary in sending or receiving electronic mail or that provides to end users of the electronic mail service the ability to send or receive electronic mail.

10 72. The electronic messages initiated by RadPad and/or the Doe Defendants are 11 “commercial e-mail advertisements” as defined in Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.1 because 12 they were initiated for the purpose of advertising or promoting the lease, sale, rental, gift, offer, 13 or other disposition of any property, goods, services, or extension of credits.

14 73. The commercial email advertisements were sent from California or sent to 15 California electronic mail addresses.

16 74. On information and belief, RadPad and/or the Doe Defendants initiated and 17 advertised RadPad's services and websites in commercial email advertisements which contain 18 falsified or misrepresented header information in violation of Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code 19 § 17529.5(a)(2).

20 75. In addition, on information and belief, RadPad and/or the Doe Defendants 21 initiated and advertised RadPad's services and websites in commercial email advertisements 22 which contain subject lines that are likely to mislead the craigslist users receiving the messages 23 as to the contents or subject matter of the message in violation of Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code 24 § 17529.5(a)(3).

25 76. craigslist has suffered damages and losses by reason of these violations, including 26 expenses associated with investigating and combating RadPad's and/or the Doe Defendants' 27 unauthorized spam messages.

28 77. craigslist is also entitled to recover its reasonable attorney's fees and costs

1 pursuant to Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code § 17529.5(b)(1)(C).

2 FOURTH CLAIM FOR RELIEF

3 Computer Fraud and Abuse Act: 18 U.S.C. § 1030 *et seq.

4 78. craigslist realleges and incorporates by reference all of the factual allegations set 5 forth above.

6 79. craigslist's computers and servers are involved in interstate and foreign commerce 7 and communication, and are protected computers under 18 U.S.C. §1030(e)(2).

8 80. On information and belief, RadPad and/or the Doe Defendants knowingly, 9 willfully and intentionally accessed (and continue to access) craigslist's computers and servers 10 without authorization. RadPad and/or the Doe Defendants accepted and agreed to be bound by 11 the Terms of Use, which provide that users (a) are not authorized to access craigslist's computers 12 and servers by means of “[r]obots, spiders, scripts, scrapers, crawlers, etc.” and (b) are not 13 authorized to access craigslist's computers and servers for the purpose of “collect[ing] users’ 14 personal and/or contact information.”

15 81. On information and belief, after gaining unauthorized access to craigslist's 16 servers, RadPad and/or the Doe Defendants obtained and used valuable information from 17 craigslist's protected computers and servers in transactions involving interstate or foreign 18 communications. This information includes, among other things, craigslist posts and other 19 content.

20 82. RadPad and/or the Doe Defendants, knowingly, willfully, and with an intent to 21 defraud have accessed (and continue to access) craigslist's computers and servers without 22 authorization and obtained valuable information from craigslist's computers and servers that, on 23 information and belief, RadPad and the Doe Defendants used to obtain something of value.

24 83. craigslist has suffered damage and loss by reason of these violations, including, 25 without limitation, expenses associated with investigating the unauthorized access and abuse of 26 its computers and servers, and other losses and damage in an amount to be proven at trial, and 27 well in excess of $5,000 aggregated over a one year period.

28 84. In addition, craigslist has suffered and will continue to suffer irreparable harm,

1 and its remedy at law is not itself adequate to compensate it for injuries inflicted by RadPad
 2 and/or the Doe Defendants. Accordingly, craigslist is entitled to injunctive relief.

3 FIFTH CLAIM FOR RELIEF

4 California Comprehensive Computer Access and Fraud Act: Cal. Penal Code § 502

5 85. craigslist realleges and incorporates by reference all of the factual allegations set 6 forth above.

7 86. RadPad and/or the Doe Defendants have violated California Penal Code 8 §502(c)(2) by knowingly and fraudulently, and without permission, accessing, taking, copying, 9 and making use of programs, data, and files from craigslist's computers, computer systems, 10 and/or computer networks.

11 87. RadPad and/or the Doe Defendants have violated California Penal Code 12 §502(c)(3) by knowingly, fraudulently, and without permission accessing and using craigslist's 13 computers and servers.

14 88. RadPad and/or the Doe Defendants have violated California Penal Code 15 §502(c)(6) by knowingly, fraudulently, and without permission providing, or assisting in 16 providing, a means of accessing craigslist's computers, computer systems, and/or computer 17 networks.

18 89. RadPad and/or the Doe Defendants have violated California Penal Code 19 §502(c)(7) by knowingly, fraudulently, and without permission accessing, or causing to be 20 accessed, craigslist's computers, computer systems, and/or computer networks.

21 90. As a direct and proximate result of RadPad's and/or the Doe Defendants' 22 unlawful conduct within the meaning of California Penal Code §502, RadPad and/or the Doe 23 Defendants have caused damage to craigslist, as described herein, in an amount to be proven at 24 trial. craigslist is also entitled to recover its reasonable attorney's fees pursuant to California 25 Penal Code §502(e).

26 91. In addition, craigslist has suffered and will continue to suffer irreparable harm, 27 and its remedy at law is not itself adequate to compensate it for injuries inflicted by RadPad and 28 the Doe Defendants. Accordingly, craigslist is entitled to injunctive relief.

SIXTH CLAIM FOR RELIEF

Direct and Indirect Copyright Infringement of the 2016 Copyrighted Works:

17 U.S.C. § 501, et seq.

92. craigslist realleges and incorporates by reference all of the factual allegations set forth above.

93. craigslist owns valid and enforceable copyrights in the 2016 Copyrighted Works, which are creative works of original authorship. craigslist has pending copyright registration applications for the 2016 Copyrighted Works. The pending copyright registration applications for the 2016 Copyrighted Works cover the full text and photographs of the listings.

10 94. Through the acts alleged above, RadPad and others acting in concert with it 11 (including the Doe Defendants), violated craigslist's exclusive rights to reproduce, make copies 12 of, distribute and display the 2016 Copyrighted Works, by, among other things, copying and 13 displaying the 2016 Copyrighted Works on RadPad's website without a license in violation of 14 17 U.S.C. § 106.

15 95. RadPad and those acting in concert with it (including the Doe Defendants) were 16 not authorized to copy, download, reproduce, create derivative works from, or display the 2016
17 Copyrighted Works.

18 96. RadPad and those acting in concert with it (including the Doe Defendants) knew 19 or should have known that copying, distributing, displaying, and/or creating derivative works of 20 and from the 2016 Copyrighted Works—which they had no license to copy, distribute, display, 21 or create derivative works from—or controlling, directing, intentionally encouraging, inducing, 22 or materially contributing to others’ efforts to do so, infringed craigslist’s exclusive rights in the 23 2016 Copyrighted Works.

24 97. To the extent that the Doe Defendants, including without limitation any 25 “freelancers” from Elance-oDesk, Inc., were direct infringers of the 2016 Copyrighted Works as 26 described herein, RadPad is indirectly liable for such direct infringements on all known theories 27 of indirect liability, including without limitation vicarious liability, contributory liability, and 28 “inducement” liability.

1 98. RadPad has, or at relevant times had, the right and ability to control the infringing 2 conduct of its agents, affiliates, and co-conspirators—at least some of which RadPad admittedly 3 hired for the express purpose of engaging in the conduct that constitutes infringement. And 4 RadPad has received, and continues to receive, a direct financial benefit from the infringing 5 conduct of its agents, affiliates, and co-conspirators, by improving or otherwise augmenting its 6 service, as alleged inter alia in RadPad’s Amended Counter-Complaint.

7 99. RadPad had knowledge of the conduct of its agents, affiliates, and co-conspirators 8 that constitutes infringement, and materially contributed to that infringement, in the manner 9 described herein. And RadPad deliberately and shamelessly induced that infringement for its 10 own gain, as described herein.

11 100. craigslist is entitled to damages from RadPad in an amount to be proven at trial, 12 including profits attributable to the infringement not taken into account in computing actual 13 damages under 17 U.S.C. § 504(b). craigslist is entitled to statutory damages under 17 U.S.C.
14 § 504(c) based on RadPad's infringements.

15 101. RadPad's infringement of craigslist's exclusive rights has also caused craigslist 16 irreparable injury. Unless restrained and enjoined, RadPad will continue to commit such acts.
17 craigslist's remedies at law are not adequate to compensate it for these inflicted and threatened 18 injuries, entitling it to remedies, including injunctive relief as provided by 17 U.S.C. § 502 and 19 an order impounding or destroying any and all infringing materials pursuant to 17 U.S.C. § 503.

SEVENTH CLAIM FOR RELIEF

Indirect Copyright Infringement of the Works 3taps Infringed: 17 U.S.C. § 501

22 102. craigslist realleges and incorporates by reference all of the factual allegations set 23 forth above.

24 103. RadPad is contributorily liable for, and/or liable for inducing, 3taps' copyright 25 infringements of the registered works referenced above, via the actions described herein.

26 104. craigslist never authorized or licensed 3taps or RadPad to use any of its 27 copyrighted works.

28 105. RadPad's secondarily infringing conduct was knowing, intentional, and willful.

106. craigslist is entitled to RadPad's profits, pursuant to 17 U.S.C. § 504(a).

107. Alternatively, craigslist is entitled to elect statutory damages instead of RadPad's profits, pursuant to 17 U.S.C. § 504(c), including enhanced statutory damages due to RadPad's willful secondary infringement.

108. craigslist is entitled to its attorneys' fees and costs pursuant to 17 U.S.C. § 505.
